

Mabid Ali Al-Jarhi is currently professor of economics and finance at INCEIF, Malaysia. He is also member and secretary of the Shari‘ah board at the Dubai Financial Market. After graduating from Cairo University in 1960, he completed his graduate studies at the University of Illinois, University of California (UCLA) and finally obtaining his PhD in economics from the University of Southern California (USC) in 1975. He has held many high ranking positions in his long-standing career including: professor of economics and finance, Faculty of Islamic Studies, at Hamad bin Khalifa University, Qatar; financial expert and head of training, Emirates Islamic Bank; President, International Association for Islamic Economics; Director, Islamic Research and Training Institute (IRTI-IDB); Chief Editor, Islamic Economic Studies journal (IRTI-IDB); Director, Economic and Policy Planning at Islamic Development Bank (IDB); Chief of Research and Senior Economist, Technical Editor of the Joint Arab Economic Report, Secretary General, Council of Governors of Arab Central Banks, Arab Monetary Fund and economist at the Institute of National Planning, Cairo. He was also a member of the Constitutional Committee that wrote the Egyptian Constitution of 2012. He was also the former author of a yearly economic report on Islamic finance in the UAE and the Gulf. Having taught economics at American and Egyptian universities, he has participated in establishing several Islamic banks, and in introducing Islamic banking laws. He has published extensively in economics and Islamic economics and Finance.

E-mail: mabid.al.jarhi@gmail.com